Officials trying to stay ahead of water situation

By Lynne Locke
The Water Problem: "If it doesn't get better, it's going to get worse," according to the Larry Dilley, Upland water utility inspector.

Dilley noted city officials are trying "to stay one step ahead" of the water situation, an attempt which is made more difficult by public skepticism.

Some Upland residents suspect the water crisis is "a rip-off," he said and added many are questioning recent reports that water bills will increase if people manage to conserve a significant amount of water.

Dilley recently attended the Governor's Drought Conference, which produced "very few" new ideas and left Dilley with the feeling that if local areas don't conserve voluntarily, the state may require mandatory conservation.

Upland and local water districts are asking residents to voluntarily cut water use by 10 per cent, he said noting that amount can be cut easily — and painlessly — inside the home by adding a flow restrictor to the shower head.

Upland water records show each resident uses an average of 283 gallons of water daily for a total of 286.9 million gallons during January 1976 and a whopping 514 million gallons during July 1976.

If Uplanders — along with water users statewide — don't cut water usage by 10 per cent (27 or 28 gallons less per day), Dilley said, the threat is that the state will institute mandatory conservation requiring a 25 per cent cut.

Although many residents think Southern California is well provided for water, local areas will face a problem in the future, he said noting that water takes several years from the time it rains to percolate through the ground and reappear as underground water resources.

And water prices will increase as water becomes scarcer. "What we can save now will be money in the bank," Dilley said adding that the city must plan not only for the present but also for the future.

Officials have already instituted several water saving policies for the city, he said and noted that a major goal will be to keep the city's landscaping "green but not over-watered."

City officials are also redesigning sprinkler systems for more efficient water use and eventually will install underground sprinkler systems to cut water run-off.

Upland is also joining with other West End cities and West End water districts in encouraging local residents to use water more efficiently.

Joint advertisements will request residents to make a voluntary commitment to cut water use by 10 per cent. The joint advertising campaign will also suggest ways to become more efficient water users.

The easiest way for each Uplander to cut 27 gallons of water from the daily amount is to install a flow restrictor, cutting the daily shower flow from 10 gallons per minute to 3 gallons per minute. Dilley said the change is practically painless and added members of his family haven't noticed any difference.

Residents can also check toilets for leaks, he said and noted that the leaky toilet is notorious for being one of the greatest water wasters.

Another indoors water saver is to put a "water daff" in the toilet tank to reduce the amount of water used in each flush. Other agencies have recommended putting a water-filled plastic bottle in the tank to serve the same purpose, but using a brick in the tank is not advised.

Residents can cut 10 per cent easily indoors, Dilley commented and added it would be "no great hardship" to cut 25 per cent by changing some outdoor habits as well.

Some of the easiest outdoor changes include washing the car from a bucket rather than a running hose; not watering the lawn in the late afternoon when the wind blows the water down the street; and using a kitchen timer as a reminder that the water has run long enough.

Air brush use taught

Upland High School students are learning to use an air brush in combination with silk screen processes in the new course "print/air" taught by Stan Carpenter and Richard Andrew.

Students spend nine weeks learning use of the air brush which allows soft tonal effects and shading and then nine weeks learning silk screen techniques.

The air brush, originally used for retouching photographs and technical illustration, is a small hand spray unit which uses small amounts of colored inks, paints and glazes.

Silk screening uses a fine silk mesh through which paint is squeezed.

Graphoanalyst to teach handwriting analysis class

Personality shows in people's handwriting

By Lynne Locke
"This person has a strong imagination for intangibles, the creative talent to make or do something, can keep up a conversation, pays attention to detail, and prefers to work without supervision."

Graphoanalyst Jeannie Brockmeyer can tell this much and more about a person just by looking at a sample of handwriting, and she will teach the "scientific stroke by stroke analysis" in a free eight-week class 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning April 12 at Upland Recreation Department, 123 E. D St.

A person's basic personality shows in his or her handwriting, according to Jeannie who said she can often tell more about a person through handwriting than many friends now about the person.

A person may have a bad temper but keep it under control so that friends and neighbors don't even know he or she has a temper problem. But both the temper and the self-control will show in the handwriting, Jeannie said.

Graphoanalysis studies character through a scientific consideration of each stroke in a writing sample. The slant of the stroke, the way letters are joined, the dot of an "i," the bar of a "t," and the loop of a "y" are all signs of different personality characteristics, she said.

Characteristics must be considered together, Jeannie said and commented the "flourish" at the beginning of the letter "m" can indicate humor but consider along with another stroke can indicate sarcasm.

Students in the graphoanalysis class will learn 70 personality strokes — only a basic knowledge, according to Jeannie who noted that the letter "t" can show 100 different personality traits depending on where the cross bar is placed, how the letter is connected to the next and a host of other considerations.

Handwriting changes during times of crisis or vacation and changes as personality changes, she said and added people can change their personalities by changing their handwriting.

Placing a "t" bar higher is one way for a person to begin to set higher goals, and every time the persons thinks about crossing the "t" in a different way, the new personality characteristic is reinforced, she said.

But Jeannie does not encourage people to change their personalities by changing their handwriting because one change automatically causes others which may not be such good changes.

Handwriting analysis can be useful in everyday life, she said noting that she has used it to understand her children and help them to get along with each other as well as to know how to deal best with each child.

In addition, handwriting analysis helps people to not take another person's traits so personally. Instead of thinking, "He (or she) never does what I want," a person can realize the handwriting shows that the friend (or spouse) is prone to procrastinate with everyone and everything.

By using graphoanalysis, a person can tell that another person is annoyed by little things or has strong emotions and can act accordingly, she said.

In addition, handwriting analysis can show whether two people would be compatible in a marriage or a job or whether a person and a job would be compatible, Jeannie said.

Teachers especially, find handwriting analysis useful, she said noting that it is helpful for a teacher to know that a student is impulsive or whether the student is a slow or a fast learner.

The technique can be helpful even with kindergartners who haven't yet learned to write, she said and added that kindergarten "squiggles" can show personality just as clearly as adult handwriting since legibility isn't important.

Jeannie finds that handwriting analysis is a good topic of conversation at parties because "people are interested in themselves and others around them."

"People are amazed I can know as much about them just meeting them the first time," she said and noted she has people write "Ten tiny turtles took a trip down the road" to get a "bird's eye view" of their character.

A more formal analysis is done with three pages of handwritten material, but the "ten tiny turtles" phrase uses the "t" so much that it is good for a quick analysis, she said.

"Anyone can learn graphoanalysis," according to Jeannie who said "everybody from 18 (years) on up" takes her class. Participants have included doctors, teachers, housewives and students.

Jeannie herself has always been interested in handwriting and decided to study professionally after taking an introductory course.

She completed a correspondence course and then a weeklong course in Chicago to become certified and is studying now to become a master graphoanalyst.

Her eventual goal is to work with "questionable documents" such as Howard Hughes' will or forged checks.

HANDWRITING AND PERSONALITY — Graphoanalysts can determine personality traits from scientifically evaluating people's handwriting, according to Jeannie Brockmeyer, who will teach a handwriting analysis class 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays beginning April

County medical center financial study ordered

By PETER WONG

A comprehensive study of the county medical center to see how its operating costs can be reduced was ordered Monday by the county board of supervisors.

The supervisors acted while in the middle of debate over whether county hospital doctors should be allowed to earn extra money by working extra hours treating private patients of their own. The board finally approved a sharply limited version of the proposal.

They also again delayed acceptance of a $500,000 grant for a clinic to attract more family doctors to the county. The supervisors decided to seek a site for the proposed clinic that is away from the county medical center in San Bernardino.

Fearing increased competition from the county medical center staff, representatives of private physicians and hospitals welcomed the supervisors' three decisions.

The debate over issues affecting the county medical center indicated deep differences between private medicine and county government over the center's role.

A proposal for a comprehensive study of the center's operations was requested by the supervisors more than a month ago, apparently in view of a possible $1 million increase in direct county support which may be needed in the next year.

An estimated $15 million in construction is envisioned in the center's master plan for 1980 — another major financial commitment the county has made.

The study will be conducted by an outside consulting firm not yet chosen. It is to be completed by early next year.

In addition, the study may help decide whether the county medical center should serve primarily as a teaching institution for new doctors or as a provider of medical care for those who cannot afford it or cannot obtain it anywhere else.

Although the medical center does both, it emphasizes service for the poor, as required by state law.

James Ferguson, executive director of the San Bernardino County Taxpayers' Association, criticized the cost of the medical center's teaching program.

Since 1968, when it was established, the program has cost "between $20 and $30 million," Ferguson asserted, "with very little return to county taxpayers."

Supervisor Dennis L. Hansberger of Yucaipa said he agreed with Ferguson only to the extent that more residents and interns at the county medical center have not stayed to practice in San Bernardino County.

"But how you come up with the fact that we spent that kind of money is absolutely incredible to me," Hansberger said.

In nine years, the cost of operating the medical center to county taxpayers has dropped from $4 million (of a total $8 million budget, without the teaching program) to $3 million (of a total $24 million budget, with the program), he said.

Hansberger said the teaching program has saved county government millions of dollars.

Ferguson said the plan to allow county hospital doctors to earn up to 30 per cent of their base salaries by treating private patients on their own would actually cost the county money.

Ferguson won support from Dr. Benson Harer, president of the San Bernardino County Medical Society, and George DeLange, administrator of Redlands Community Hospital.

Harer and DeLange argued that the plan would allow county hospital doctors to compete with doctors in private practice and private hospitals. They pointed to evidence that county hospital doctors' salaries are already comparable to those of doctors in private practice.

DANCE — Checking out the sample sandwich is Ruth Ann Pierick, while Elaine Bentley spreads a dash of mustard on top. In her chef's hat, Phyllis Ackerman awaits the opinion. The women are getting ready for the "Tacky, Tacky, Tacky" dance to be held Saturday by the Assistance League of Pomona Valley in the Crippled Children's Society building, Claremont. Everyone has been asked to dress in shabby clothes, and an unfashionable fashion show will be held. Proceeds will go to the Neighborhood Senior Citizens Center and the Learning Center tutoring program.

County Public Social Services

Project to shelter youngsters

A new program planned by the Department of Public Social Services in San Bernardino County will take abused children out of Juvenile Hall and put them into foster homes.

The program is titled "24 Hour Comprehensive Emergency Child Protective Services Agency" and is called CES for short.

Right now, if a child is being abused, is abandoned or finds himself somehow dependent, the child is shipped off to juvenile hall for emergency care.

"This is not an ideal location, so beginning June 1, there will be a series of emergency shelter care homes located throughout the county," explained John T. Dokken, program information officer for the DPSS.

The program will be coordinated with law enforcement agencies and fire department personnel who will have access to the CES personnel 24 hours a day, Dokken noted.

A CES worker, after learning about a homeless child, will first try to make arrangements for a relative to house the child, Dokken said.

In some cases, the child would be left homeless because of a heart attack or fire or some other disabling tragedy which befalls the parents. Child abuse and abandonment would be the two other big contributing factors to dependent children, he said.

If relatives or other adults known to the children are not available to care for the youngsters, the CES worker will make arrangements with a shelter home so the child can be cared for in a homelike setting until the mother, father or guardian can resume care, Dokken explained.

Each of these shelter homes will have between two and eight beds and be equipped to care for children for three to six weeks — until the DPSS or courts decide what will happen to the child.

Often a permanent foster home will be chosen. Or the parents will resume custody.

On June 1, CES officials will begin placing children in these shelter homes. On July 1, the juvenile hall dependency unit will be closed down.

But the county needs help to make this program work. "We need people to volunteer their homes," Dokken said.

Anyone interested in providing an emergency shelter home in the Ontario area is asked to call Al Sadler or Charlie Hurd at the San Bernardino DPSS office, (714) 383-2624.

Davis on first team

Rich Davis, Alta Loma High School's talented senior, has been accorded first team laurels on the All-CIF, 2A basketball honor squad for the 1976-77 season.

A 6-foot-10, 200-pounder who led the Braves to a second straight Hacienda League title and subsequent quarterfinal berth in the 2A playoffs, Davis averaged 15.1 points and 10.6 rebounds per game as ALHS posted a 25-5 season record.

Last year, Davis also played an instrumental role when the Braves went 26-2 and lost to Rowland, the eventual champion, in the second round of the playoffs.

Davis is one of six "front court" performers to be named to the top unit. Among the six is 2A Player of the Year, 6-4 Tony Anderson of Victor Valley. Anderson, also a senior, led the Jackrabbits to a 28-2 ledger, scoring 25.6 points per game and averaging 17.9 rebounds from the center position.

Davis and Anderson met head-on in the quarterfinals at Victor Valley with the former outscoring the latter, 14-10. The Jackrabbits prevailed in the meeting, however, and went on to the finals before bowing to Channel Islands.

Channel landed two of its stars, Rich Collins and Bob Thompson, on the first unit.

Although Davis is rangy at 6-10, the tallest player selected is 7-0 senior Dave McGuire of Workman. McGuire is joined by teammate Billy Morales.

Rounding out the top unit are Leon Wood, St. Monica; Manuel Crump, Duarte; Craig McGhee, Moreno Valley, and Kurt Herbst, Bellflower.

Morales was a first-team pick last year, and Crump moved up from third team (no third team was picked this season).

Davis, who is being recruited by several major schools, including Oregon, Stanford, Cal and USC of the Pac-8, scored 409 points in 27 games for the 15.1 average.

He accumulated 287 rebounds over the same span for the 10.6 mark and collected a school-record 105 blocked shots, or 3.9 blocks per outing.

For the season, Davis shot 51.7 per cent from the floor (164-for-317) and 52.6 per cent from the foul line (81-for-154).

In the Hacienda League, where Alta Loma won 13 of 14 games, Davis had a slightly higher scoring rate (16.2 average) with 178 points in 11 games. He snared 110 rebounds for an even 10.0 norm.

He was credited with 52 blocked shots for a higher 4.7 average.

Davis' statistics might have been even more impressive had he not missed three league starts with an ankle injury.

A likely performer in the annual North-South All-Star Game slated in June, Davis earlier had been named the Hacienda League's Most Valuable Player.

Easier way to appeal property tax inaugurated

Homeowners who want to pursue appeals of their property assessments will have an easier time in the coming year, due to action this week by the county board of supervisors.

At the suggestion of County Assessor Robert J. Herbin, the supervisors decided to hire an independent hearing officer who will consider homeowners' requests for reductions in the appraisals made by the assessor's office.

At present, homeowners who decide to challenge their property assessments must argue their case before one of the county's two three-member appeals boards in a formal, courtroom-like atmosphere.

Under the new system, Herbin told the supervisors, homeowners "who have a hesitation about appearing in front of the formal assessment appeals board have the opportunity to sit down on a one-to-one basis and discuss their assessment with the hearing officer, if they feel it's overvalued."

Herbin said the plan should cut costs because a hearing officer can handle more cases per day than either of the two boards.

After considering presentations by the homeowner and the assessor's office, Herbin said, the hearing officer would make his recommendation to the appeals board, which would act on it.

If the homeowner were dissatisfied with the hearing officer's ruling, he could then ask for a full hearing by one of the two appeals boards.

Of an estimated 800 property taxpayers who are expected to file assessment appeals this summer, Herbin believes that 240 of them will choose to have their cases considered by a hearing officer, or about 30 per cent.

Assuming that a hearing officer can handle 20 cases per day at $100, Herbin told the supervisors, the 240 cases could be completed in 12 days at a cost of $1,200.

In contrast, a three-member appeals board can now handle about 12 cases per day at $225.

Homeowners exemption claims due by April 15

Homeowners who have not filed, or have not received a correction-termination notice from the assessor have until April 15th to file for the $1750 Homeowners Exemption, according to Robert Herbin, San Bernardino County assessor.

"Early in March we mailed a notice to all persons who our records showed were entitled to receive the exemption. Persons who did not receive either that notice or a blank claim form to complete should file before April 15th," he said.

Some persons who purchased a new home since March of 1976 may not have received a notice. The only requirements to obtain the exemption are that the present owner must have had title to the property as of March 1st, 1977 and was occupying the home on that date.

Homeowners filing for the first time should bring their deed or tax bill, and the social security numbers of the owners who are living in the house to the Assessor's office.

Claims may be filed at the Hall of Records, 172 W. 3rd St., San Bernardino, or at any of the assessor's field offices throughout the country.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the assessor's office, 383-2661. From Redlands 864-1300 Extension 2661, or from other parts of the county toll-free 800-472-5694 Extension 2661.

Law limits motorcycle riding

By John Shoemaker
Community Relations Coordinator
City of Upland

QUESTION: There is a vacant lot next to us and some youngsters drive their motorcycles on it. Is this permissible? B.R.

ANSWER: No person can operate a motor vehicle, including automobile, motorcycle, or motordriven cycle as defined in the California Vehicle Code, except on public streets and highways. The operation of such motor vehicles on property other than public streets and highways is forbidden unless the operator has the prior written consent of the owner of the property, or his or her authorized agent, and unless this consent is in the possession of the operator at all times while operating the motor vehicle on the property. Failure of operators to have such permission in their possession while operating motor vehicles, except on public streets and highways or upon their own property, is a violation of Upland Municipal Code.

QUESTION: Can you tell me about the Fire Prevention program for the city, R.R.

A Bureau of Fire Prevention in the Fire Department is operated under the supervision of Chief Leon Lamphear. The chief details members of the Fire Department as inspectors when necessary. It is the duty of the officers of the Bureau of Fire Prevention to enforce all laws and ordinances covering the following:

- The prevention of fires;
- The storage and use of explosives and flammables;
- The installation and maintenance of automatic and other private fire alarm systems, and fire extinguishing equipment;

- The maintenance and regulation of fire escapes;
- The maintenance of protection and the elimination of hazards in buildings and structures, including those under construction;

-The means and adequacy of exit in case of fire, from factories, schools, hotels, lodging houses, asylums, hospitals, churches, halls, theaters, amphitheaters and all other places in which numbers of persons work, live or congregate, from time to time, for any purpose;

- The investigation of the cause, origin and circumstances of fires;

-They have such other powers and perform other duties which are set forth in these provisions and other ordinances of the city, and which may be conferred and imposed by new laws.

SPECIAL NOTES: One of Upland Police Department's crime prevention programs, "Neighborhood Watch" continues to grow in popularity. Begun 18 months ago, approximately 25 neighborhoods have been assisted by the Police Department in implementing the program. During the period the program has been in existence, there has only been one burglary in a Neighborhood Watch area. A resident reported two suspicious subjects at a neighbor's home. Officers arrested two adults for burglary and recovered all property taken.

In contrast the police have had a substantial increase of residential burglaries in other parts of the city. If any citizen is interested in developing a Neighborhood Watch, inquiries may be made to Captain Ken Steslicki at the Upland Police Department, 982-1331.

Booklets on "Water Conservation at Home" are being distributed throughout the city of Upland. This is a very handy booklet to have, giving information on ways and means on conservation. Conservation can be a solid favor to your pocketbook too. You may pick up your copy at City Hall, Police, Fire, Recreation departments and library. Inquiries on water conservation and poster contests may be made to Larry Dille at the Water Department, 982-1352.

To reach "The Town Crier," write to: Community Relations Department, City of Upland, 460 N. Euclid Ave., Upland 91786. Persons should include their name, address and telephone number. Only initials will be listed in the column.

A Woman Ought to Know

Flexible work plans needed

Dear Anita,
I feel like a trapeze artist treading a high wire. With full responsibility for two children, I am up at 6 a.m., feeding and clothing them for school. At 8 a.m. I'm at work. After 5 p.m. I do the household chores at break-neck pace—grocery shopping, making dinner, cleaning house and also being a parent. I love my work, but I need some "day time" for doctor visits, personal business, shopping. Are any companies using flexible work plans which consider the need for some free time during the day?
M.P., San Diego
Dear M.P.,
Employers are beginning to face the fact that many of their employees are women workers with families. Many married mothers work to provide the margin between sheer subsistence and a semblance of the good life. Women like you who head households are as attached to the labor force as are men.

Employers know this, and many have found benefits in making the 8-to-5 routine more flexible. Some use flextime - allowing the employee to set hours within necessary parameters of the organization. Studies show employees have more enthusiasm, are less distracted by family or other outside responsibilities, and don't experience the boredom of standard hours. The city of Berkeley, for instance, found a reduction in sick leave costs by using "flextime."

Flextime enables women who have many demands on their time to adjust their community schedules to school hours and offers daytime for necessary business which can only be done during the day.

Another plan which provides day hours for busy people is the 10-hour work day, four days a week. Some organizations have found that this plan, too, provides more "day hour" business time.

The employer's concern, of course, is productivity; and it may be that as life styles change, new options will be seriously considered by managers as means of accommodating to a more technically trained work force, highly motivated, and career as well as family oriented.

Anita Miller

Dear Anita,

If everyone else has heard that it is against the law to deny qualified women credit, why don't the banks and stores get the news? I'm repeatedly insulted by companies who don't consider my good job, savings account, and a good credit history sufficient. I suspect it's because I'm a women. What can I do?

Dear Anita,

I have managed to stay off welfare and support my children on my $550 per month salary plus $150 total child support for five years. Now the oldest is 17 and would like to go to college. Will my support money ($50) for this boy be cut off?
M.A., Carmichael

Dear M.A.,

It can be cut off under present law. This was one consequence of the law which named youngsters adults at age 18.

It is difficult enough for families which remain intact to put their children through college.

But when divorce occurs, the majority of mothers enter the work force for the first time - and at entry level wages. Despite gains made by women in professional and non-traditional jobs which pay higher salaries, women for the most part remain segregated in low-paying clerical work and service jobs related to homemaking.

The California legislature is concerned about the increasing number of children of such families who have no assurance of assistance in completing college. A measure has just been introduced in the Assembly - AB 272 (McAllister) which would allow the courts to authorize child support to a maximum of 21 years old for youngsters registered full-time in an accredited institution of higher education. Since the legislative session just began, there is no indication yet as to how this bill will fare.

Fathers may, of course, choose to continue to support their children through college, whether or not the law requires them to do so.
Anita Miller

G.S., San Mateo
Dear G.S.,

You're absolutely right about the law. In 1975 state and federal credit laws were passed to correct some inequities in treatment of women applicants for credit. In January, new regulations were added to require consumer credit reporting agencies to permit consumers to see their credit reports.

Under these new laws, it is no longer legal for a credit agency to discount a married woman's earnings. A woman may not be asked her plans to have children or her birth control practices. She can list and use all community assets to get credit in her own name. She does not need her husband's signatures if the husband were the applicant. Women who are not married have new rights, too. For instance, credit agencies must consider a child support payments as assets. When the court has ordered that these payments be made, they must be considered her wages.

If you are denied credit, ask for the name of the "credit reporting agency" that rates you for the store. Then ask the agency to let you see your file so you will know why you were denied credit.

If you believe you were denied credit because of your sex or marital status, you can get legal assistance. It is now possible to recover actual damages and punitive damages up to $10,000 for discriminatory practices. You can also send a written complaint to the California Attorney General's Office, Public Inquiry Unit, 555 Capitol Mall, Sacramento 95814. If you want to end discrimination, take advantage of these new laws to aid you.

- Several synthetic logs, commonly formed of sawdust plus a binder, can be burned at the same time in a fireplace?
☐ True ☐ False
- A fireplace chimney which draws poorly and occasionally spills smoke into the room is:
A. A nuisance
B. A fire hazard
C. Can be neglected

ANSWERS

Provided as a service by Underwriters Laboratories
1. FALSE These logs should always be burned singly. If two or more are burned piled on top of each other, the over-heated binder can cause an explosion.
2. B A properly designed fireplace which acts this way is telling you now it is plugged up with rubbish, birds' nests, loose bricks etc. It should be examined, cleaned or repaired immediately to avoid filling the house with sparks, smoke or toxic gases.

Do artificial colors and flavoring agents produce hyperactive behavioral symptoms in genetically predisposed children? In 1975, a California allergist, Benjamin F. Feingold, M.D., suggested in his book, "Why Your Child is Hyperactive," that they do, and that total withdrawal of the artificial substances from the diet can be of therapeutic value in the treatment of approximately 45 per cent of children with hyperkinesis.

However, according to Sherwin Gardner, acting commissioner, Food and Drug Administration, U.S. Public Health Service, the preliminary findings of researchers show "no significant overall effect from the Feingold diet, either as measured by classroom behavior or by parents."

Gardner said the possible relationship between food additives and hyperkinetic syndrome in children is being studied by various agencies within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and by outside groups.

The results he described came from a recent study by the Food Research Institute of the University of Wisconsin.

Further government funded studies and others are planned.

Esther Wender, M.D., assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Utah College of Medicine, described three studies discussed at a recent meeting of the Nutrition Foundation held in Palm Springs.

One of them was the University of Wisconsin study. The second was held under the auspices of the University of Pittsburgh and the third by Dr. J. Williams in Western Ontario, Canada.

Dr. Wender reported that the results of these studies suggested the claims of the Feingold theory are unsupported and more research is warranted.

It has been estimated that three out of 100 elementary school children have moderate and severe behavioral and learning disorders related to the hyperkinetic syndrome, or minimal brain dysfunction as it is often referred to.

New table for taxes

For the first time, taxpayers filing the short Form 1040A will have to figure their standard deduction and exemptions, the Internal Revenue Service has announced.

The need for the added computations stems from the Tax Reform Act of 1976 which provides for a tax table to be used by all taxpayers having taxable incomes of $20,000 or less, the IRS explained.

Single persons are entitled to a minimum standard deduction of $1,700 and married couples filing joint returns may take $2,100. The maximum standard deduction is 16 per cent of total income, up to a maximum of $2,400 for single persons, and $2,800 for married individuals filing joint returns.

'No Greater Love'

John W. Peterson's Easter Cantata "No Greater Love" will be presented 7 p.m. Sunday by the choir of the La Verne First Brethren Church, directed by Charles Doyen in the church sanctuary.

When Peterson composed the cantata in 1958 he wrote, "The greatest and most indispensable ingredient in all the universe is love. The greatest single fact in all human history is Calvary, where God's 'no greater love' for mankind was profoundly and eloquently expressed in the vicarious death of His Son. What other theme has inspired more music, poetry, painting, or other creative art than that of God's love for a wandering world?"

The choir will be accompanied by Dorothy Doyen, organist, and Carol Gillette, pianist, while Edward Swihart will be the narrator. Soloists will be David Belcher, Beverly Doyen, William Watson and Swihart. A social will be held in Fischer Hall following the cantata. The church is located at the corner of Sixth Street and White Avenue, La Verne.

Different segments of Christ's life will be portrayed in a series of 11 settings with "live" biblical characters. These will include Christ calling His disciples, calming the storm, His triumphal entry into Jerusalem, Jesus praying in the garden, carrying His cross, the crucifixion, the resurrection, as well as the Prodigal Son, and the woman at the well.

Narrators will read passages of scripture setting the scene to be portrayed. The choir will sing hymns appropriate to the scenes as they are portrayed. Songs include "I Can Hear My Saviour Calling," "Master, The Tempest is Raging," "Then Jesus Came," "Eternal Life," "Broken Vessel," "Fill My Cup Lord," "Hosanna! Hosanna!", "Alone," "The Calvary Road," "Were you There," and "Because He Lives."

Health Tips

How alcohol kills people

EDITOR'S NOTE: Health Tips is a column of the California Medical Education and Research Foundation, prepared and edited by physician members of the California Medical Association. It is reprinted by this newspaper as a public service.

Most people believe that alcohol kills primarily by affecting the liver and that liver disease occurs only in those people who are continually drunk for many years.

Both of these beliefs are wrong. Although liver disease (most often cirrhosis) is usually among the top three causes of death in persons aged 25-50 years, fewer than 50,000 persons die each year from cirrhosis.

On the other hand, some 22,000 persons are murdered each year, and two thirds of the killers are legally drunk.

To the number of people murdered each year, add the number of people killed in automobile, boating and private airplane accidents that are caused by persons who are under the influence of alcohol, and we can begin to realize how many lives are cut short by alcohol.

Alcohol also plays a significant role in deaths by suicide. Even though alcohol is actually a potent depressant, depressed persons often use it to bring about a temporary feeling of well being. Suicide is 50 times more common among alcoholics than it is among the rest of the population.

Each year more than 26,000 persons take their own lives and two-thirds of these have a blood alcohol level of .15 (persons with a blood level of .10 or above are considered legally intoxicated.)

So when we talk about the number of deaths attributable to alcohol, we must look beyond the number of persons who die from liver disease or other medically related causes.

This does not mean that alcohol does not have a number of serious medical effects on the body. It interferes with vital organ functions and is directly toxic to muscle tissue—including heart muscle. It alters the metabolism (all chemical and physical changes in the body, including tissue construction, destruction and maintenance); it interferes with the basic body defense mechanisms against infection, and it can prolong or shorten the effects of many drugs.

Heavy consumption of alcohol can aggravate heart disease, hypertension (high blood pressure) and diabetes. Prolonged heavy consumption is associated with the incidence of cancer of the mouth and esophagus.

Alcohol can produce all these effects without drunkenness—that is, within socially acceptable drinking patterns. The medical effects are seen in increasing and varying intensity in different people. In some people we may see the medical effects of alcohol but never see the behavioral effects.

Several recommendations can be made for the safe use of alcohol, including:

—Avoid drinking when performing any complicated or risky task (such as driving or operating machinery).

—Avoid individuals who drink heavily, especially if they engage in complicated or risky activities.

—Develop alternative drinks for socializing such as mixers without alcohol, or use half portions of alcohol in mixed drinks.

By following these recommendations you can minimize developing habits that could gradually increase your consumption of alcohol as you develop tolerance to its behavioral effects.

While a person can develop tolerance to the behavioral effects of alcohol, the body does not develop tolerance to the medical effects.

Even if a person doesn't "feel" the effects of alcohol, it is still taking its medical toll on the body.

Start skin care early in life

"It's never too early to pay attention to your looks," says teen-age actress, Stephanie Mills.

"Diet, exercise and skin care should be a part of every teen's health program," says the 18-year-old star of Broadway's hit musical, "The Wiz."

Stephanie found instant stardom at 16, when she created the role of Dorothy in the all-black production, based on "The Wizard of Oz."

Following her own advice, she eats only salads, lean meats and fresh fruit, works out at a health spa and babies her face. "Stage makeup is hard on delicate facial skin," she says. "That's why every bit of it must come off after every performance so that my skin doesn't get irritated. "I use baby oil to remove makeup gently and completely, then also use it as a moisturizer. Baby oil in my bath softens the water and leaves all my skin feeling smooth."

The teen star also cools off by using baby powder during her demanding two-hour singing and dancing stage stint.

What other kinds of advice does she have for other would-be actresses? "Make sure you can accept the bad times as well as the good," she says. "You've got to be strong to cope with the rejection and uphill climb that are part of the profession."

Atherosclerosis regression observed by physicians

Improvement of early atherosclerosis in femoral arteries of persons with hyperlipoproteinemia treated with diet and drugs has been observed (and measured), for the first time by a team of physicians from the University of Southern California.

They report that nine patients, and only those nine, whose blood cholesterol, triglyceride and blood pressure levels were significantly lowered by therapy, showed plaque regression in their arteries. The femoral (thigh) arteries were viewed an average of 13 months apart via a sensitive, new radiographic technique. Reduction of these three criteria was not significant among 13 patients who disease progressed and three others who evidenced no change between the two radiographic evaluations.

The 25 patients, who ranged in age from 22 to 65 years of age, had either Type II or Type IV hyperlipoproteinemia, according to Robert Barndt, Jr., M.D., David H. Blankenhorn, M.D., Donald W. Crawford, M.D., and Samuel H. Brooks, D.Sc., of the USC School of Medicine.

writing in the February issue of the Annals of Internal Medicine.

In an interview, Dr. Blankenhorn said that lack of significant lowering of blood pressure, cholesterol, and triglycerides in 16 patients may have been due to failure of some of these patients to comply with diets or take medication, a lack of effectiveness of this particular combination of diet and drug in others or possible hyperlipoproteinemic conditions in the rest that are refractory to any diet and drug regimen. He commented that most of the 25 patients were originally referred by other clinicians who had been unable to lower lipid levels adequately with drugs or to induce compliance with diets.

Type II and Type IV hyperlipoproteinemias are considered risk factors for atherosclerotic cardiovascular diseases that kill one million people in the U.S. yearly. Each are thought to afflict at least 10 million Americans. According to some estimates, the incidence of Type IV may even be 40 to 50 million in the U.S.

Type IIa hyperlipoproteinemia is characterized by high serum levels of low-density lipoprotein (LDL), which carries 75 percent of blood cholesterol. Type IIb exhibits high levels of LDL and very low-density lipoprotein (VLDL), which carries triglycerides (fats). Type IV patients have high levels of VLDL.

The scientists cautioned that their findings in a small number of patients "should not be interpreted too broadly." They said, "this study does not indicate whether treatment of hyperlipoproteinemia will improve more advanced arterial lesions in patients with symptomatic vascular disease. Nonetheless, it seems encouraging that early human atherosclerosis associated with hyperlipoproteinemia can show improvement when patients are treated."

Regression of atherosclerotic lesions in pigeons, swine and rhesus monkeys has been clearly demonstrated in earlier studies, the group noted, but regression in hyperlipoproteinemic humans has been extremely difficult to observe and measure over a period of time. As a result, regression has been seen in only three patients of all other studies. The rest have evidenced either no change or progression to more serious atherosclerosis. Most of this research has involved coronary arteries.

The investigators feel that their findings are significant for atherosclerosis in coronary arteries as well as other areas of the vascular system. However, they note that confirmation will require development of a technique to measure severity of coronary atherosclerosis with the same precision and sensitivity they achieve in the simple, straight, relatively motionless femoral artery. The patients (average age, 48) referred to the USC Medical Center's Cardiac Lipid Clinic were placed on National Heart and Lung Institute (NHLI) diets designed for their types of hyperlipoproteinemia. Oral clofibrate was prescribed to help lower serum cholesterol and triglycerides and sodium was reduced to one gram a day for those with hypertension.

Previous medications for high blood pressure (10 patients) and diabetes (one patient) were continued. Thirteen patients had Type II hyperlipoproteinemia and 12 had Type IV; 16 patients were asymptomatic, nine had a history of previous myocardial infarction or angina pectoris, but only one had claudication (weakness and cramp-like pains in the leg.)

The NHLI diet for Type IIa hyperlipoproteinemia restricts cholesterol as much as possible, limits saturated fat severely and greatly increases polyunsaturated fats in the diet. Protein and carbohydrate intake is not limited, though alcohol is reduced. The Type IIb diet, accompanied by weight reduction to normal levels, minimizes cholesterol intake, limits fat and carbohydrate each to 40 percent of calories, replaces saturated fats with polyunsaturated fats and increases protein. The diet for Type IV patients, also used with needed weight reduction, limits cholesterol intake slightly less severely than the Type II diets, limits carbohydrates to 44-46 percent of calories and restricts concentrated sweets, while recommending reduction of saturated fats.

'Ageless India' film coming

"Ageless India," narrated by Ken Wolfgang, will be presented at 2 and 8 p.m. Friday in the Garrison Theater, Claremont.

This will be the sixth presentation of the Claremont Travel Film Series for its 23rd season.

The Claremont series is a benefit project for the development fund of Pomona College.

Wolfgang heads his own film company, Kenshoro Productions, which in addition to travel-adventure programs, produces educational, industrial and natural history films.

He is also an associate director of World Tapes, Inc., a non-profit organization whose purpose is to create better understanding between people of all nations.

His years of experience with Asians and his love for them helps him to solve some of the so-called "mysteries of the Orient."

While serving three years with the United Nations Headquarters in Japan, Wolfgang first had a chance to film the orient and he has enjoyed that part of the world ever since.

Chairman of the Claremont Travel Film series is Mrs. Milo Tigner, assisted by the Mmes. Weslev Leighton, ticket sales; Roy Miller, treasurer; and also Charles Gill, Earle Jones, Jackson Niebrugge and Stuart Wheeler. Also, Esther Ballew.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office for each performance.

Coffee will be served in the foyer during the evening intermission.

Food

Refreshing change from beef

Lamb is versatile

Although it is often overlooked by American cooks, lamb can provide a refreshing change from beef without giving up the meat - and - potatoes fare that many families prefer.

With New Zealand Genuine Spring Lamb now available in the frozen food section of American supermarkets, lamb also allows this variety at reasonable prices.

Tender spring lamb also lends itself to a variety of cooking methods and can star in everything from a quick family meal to an elegant feast.

In New Zealand, the world's biggest exporter of lamb, good cooks have developed many ways to take advantage of lamb's versatility.

Even the simple lamb chop can be presented as anything from a money-saving dinner to an elaborate company meal.

There are several cuts of lamb suitable for use as chops. Like veal, few cuts of genuine spring lamb require braising or other slow-cooking methods to guarantee a tender dish.

A variety of chops from the shoulder offer a tender and easily - prepared alternative to the more expensive loin chops. Shoulder chops may be sold as Saratoga chops, blade chops or arm chops.

All lamb chops may be simply broiled, served with a variety of rich sauces, or cooked on an outdoor grill.

Rib and loin chops are similar in appearance, except that loin chops will include a portion of the lamb tenderloin.

Both cuts are also available whole. Rib or loin roasts may be roasted whole, as a very special dinner for two to four people, or two rib roasts can be skewered together to make a crown roast of lamb - truly one of the most elegant entrees in the world.

Meat from the leg or shoulder may also be cubed for use in a variety of hearty dishes. Lamb stew is a favorite, and the bones may be turned into a flavorful Scottish Broth for yet another meal.

Lamb chunks are also excellent marinated and grilled for the traditional Middle-Eastern shish-kabob.

Whatever the cut, or the recipe, cooks should be careful not to overcook their lamb. Overdone lamb loses much of its natural tenderness and flavor.

Christchurch Lemon-Glazed Lamb

1 leg New Zealand lamb, 5-6 lbs.
½ cup melted or clarified butter
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon dry mint leaves
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup sugar
2 cans (24 oz. each) yams, drained
4 tablespoons soft butter
1 egg
1 lemon slice

Remove fell, thin outer covering, from lamb. Combine melted or clarified butter, lemon juice, parsley, mint leaves, 1 clove garlic, minced and mashed with salt, pepper, sugar. Heat, stirring constantly, until sugar melts. Baste lamb well with sauce. Roast in preheated 325° F oven, about 25 minutes per lb. if thawed, 37 minutes if frozen, basting frequently with sauce. To decorate: Whip yams with butter and 1 egg. Pipe through pastry tube with rosette nozzle or spoon on dollops. Place in oven at 450°F for 5 minutes. Garnish with lemon slice. Makes 8 servings.

Shish Kabob

2 lbs. boneless New Zealand lamb leg or shoulder, cut in 1½ inch cubes
½ cup wine vinegar
½ cup oil
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon paprika
3 onions, quartered
8-12 cherry tomatoes
1 large green pepper, cut into strips

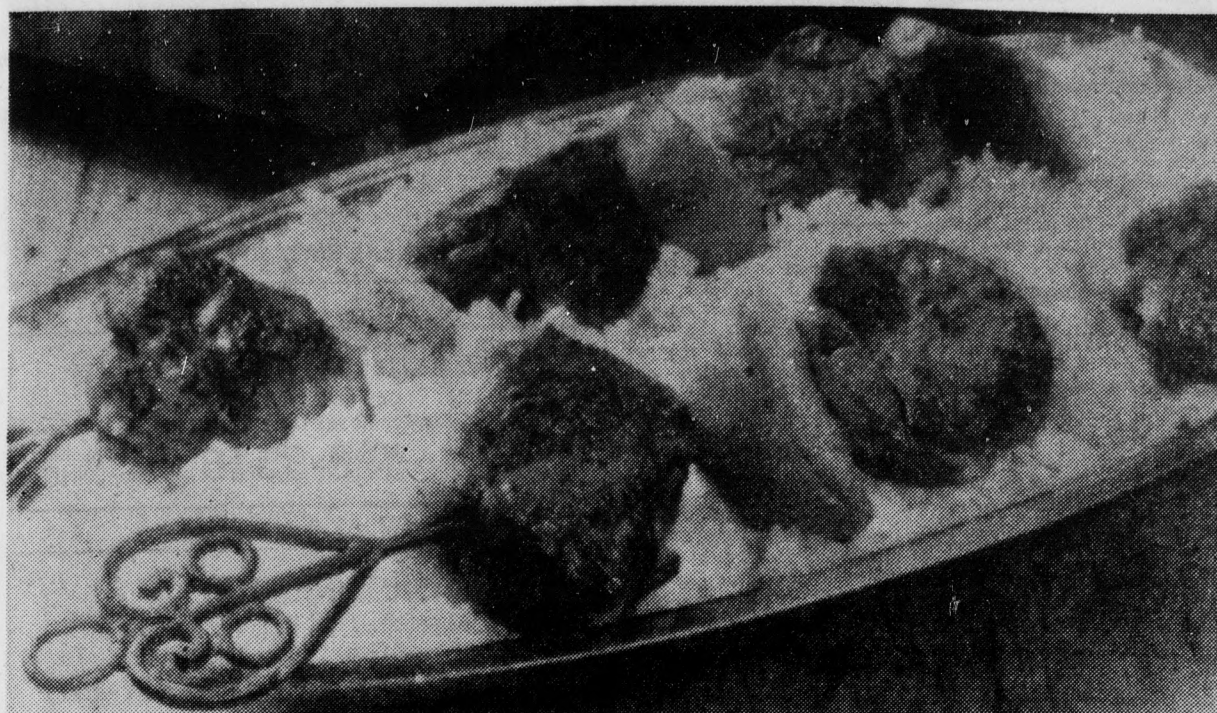

Place lamb cubes in bowl. Blend vinegar and oil with seasonings, pour over lamb. Cover bowl and let stand 2 hours or overnight in refrigerator. Thread lamb on skewers alternately with vegetables. Broil 4 inches from heat until meat is browned, 12 to 15 minutes, turning often and basting with marinade. Makes 4-6 servings.

Lamb and Baked Beans

6 New Zealand lamb shoulder chops
1½ cups dried navy beans
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
Salt, pepper
1 clove garlic
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1/3 cup molasses
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2½ cups water

Trim chops. Cover beans with cold water, bring to a boil, reduce heat, simmer 10 minutes. Let soak 1 hour. Meanwhile, heat bacon drippings, brown chops on both sides, season with salt and pepper. Remove chips to a plate. Cook onion and garlic in the same skillet until golden. Add remaining ingredients and stir over low heat until the sauce boils and is smooth. Drain beans, add to skillet. Layer bean mixture and chops in an oven casserole fitted with a lid. Cover, bake in a moderate oven (350°F) about 1½ hours, until beans are tender. Makes 6 servings.

Crown Roast with Cranberry Stuffing
3 New Zealand lamb racks, thawed
Salt and pepper
1 package (8 oz.) dry stuffing mix
1 cup fresh cranberry sauce or 1 can (8 oz.) whole cranberry sauce
¾ cup boiling water
¼ lb. butter

SHISH KABOB — Lamb is one of the most versatile of meats with such a variety of cuts from roasts to chops. Here is a delicious Shish Kabob which is full of spices since the meat has marinated overnight in good things like garlic, oregano, vinegar and pepper.

Make sweet celebration:

Apple-Spiced Flan

When you're in a merry mood, share the good feeling - give a gala dessert-coffee.

Bring out your best china and treat friends to one or more of this dazzling trio. All taste fabulous too and, believe it or not, are easy to prepare.

Apple-Spiced Flan starts with a cake mix - sweetened condensed milk gives the sprightly topping smooth creaminess. (Bake a spice cake in a Bundt pan. Beat 8 ounces cream cheese, ½ cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and cinnamon or allspice with one can sweetened condensed milk. Top cooled cake with this mixture. Crown with prepared apple pie filling. Chill.) Peanut Chocolate Torte is a truly deluxe blend of flavors. And no-bake Cranberry Cheesecake has a moist, velvety base, made with sweetened condensed milk, to complement the tart-sweet cranberry. (Recipes below.) All three will earn you compliments - enjoy!

Cranberry Cheesecake
(Makes one 9-inch cheesecake)

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
2 (8-oz.) packages cream cheese, softened

1 (14-oz.) can Sweetened Condensed milk
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup reconstituted lemon juice

1 (16-oz.) can whole berry cranberry sauce or 1 (14-oz.) jar cranberry-orange relish
1 (4½-oz.) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
Red food coloring, optional
Petal-shaped orange peel for garnish, optional

In small saucepan, melt butter; stir in crumbs and sugar. Pat firmly on bottom of 9-inch spring-form pan; chill. In large mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until light and fluffy; beat in sweetened condensed milk and set aside. Soften gelatin in lemon juice. In blender container, combine gelatin mixture and ½ cup cranberry sauce; blend well. Add to sweetened condensed milk mixture and mix well. Fold in whipped topping and tint mixture with food coloring to desired shade. Pour into prepared pan; chill 3 hours. Just before serving, top with remaining cranberry sauce and, if desired, petal-shaped orange peel. Refrigerate any leftovers.

Peanut Chocolate Torte

(Makes one 8-inch torte)
2 (8-inch) chocolate cake layers, carefully split to make 4 layers
1 (8-oz.) package cream cheese, softened
1 (14-oz.) can sweetened condensed milk
1 cup creamy or crunchy peanut butter

Peanuts and chocolate curls for garnish, optional
In medium mixer bowl, beat cream cheese until light and fluffy; slowly add sweetened condensed milk and peanut butter, beating until mixture is smooth. Stack, topping each layer with about ¾ cup mixture to form torte; garnish as desired. Chill until serving time. Refrigerate any leftovers.

Over at 30

A chick's laying days are finished when she hits 30 - months, that is. Farm Bureau poultry specialists say commercial poultry workers get rid of hens when the layers are 30 months old. Young hens or pullets begin to lay eggs at about 6 months of age.

IT'S A GREAT LITTLE CAR
1977 MAZDA GLC

"The Honda Stomper"

Imagine. An electrically operated hatch that unlatches automatically just by pushing a button below the dashboard! It's something no other car in America offers—at any price. You may, of course, open the hatch from the outside as well.

Try to find another car at this price with a rear window wiper and washer, and a rear window defroster, as standard equipment.

GLC has a rear seat that splits in half. No other car in GLC's class offers that. It means you can haul around people and cargo and packages. Or that you can fold both seats flat for a big, wide fully carpeted deck.

GLC STARTS AT

42 mpg highway.
32 mpg city.* Naturally, these are EPA estimates, and they're based on the optional 5-speed transmission. Your mileage may vary depending on how and where you drive, your car's condition, and optional equipment.

"The Want Ads are coming!"

Paul Revere used the Want Ads. In fact, people were using Want Ads about a century before the birth of our Nation.

Revere's ad was published in a Boston newspaper late in the 18th century. It was used to advertise his bell and cannon foundry.

CAST BELLS, of all sizes: every kind of brass ORDNANCE, and every kind of composition work for SHIPS, etc. at the shortest notice; manufacture COPPER into sheets, bolts, spikes, nails, rivets, dovetails, etc. from maleable copper.

PAUL REVERE USED THE WANT ADS TO ADVERTISE HIS BELL AND CANNON FOUNDRY.

Classified is one of the great and enduring things in the American heritage. Today, as they did 300 years ago, Want Ads are the universal medium for buying and selling, trading, finding things, locating jobs, obtaining a new home, plus a myriad of other goods and services.

Want Ads also are still the lowest-cost medium -- the smart way to advertise things you wish to sell, such as those no-longer-needed articles collecting dust around the house or garage. Give us a call and find how easy it is to turn those things into welcome extra money. A friendly Ad-Visor will help you word your message.

Political News

Tax relief and education

An interview with Senator Rhodda

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article includes excerpts from an interview with state Senator Albert Rodda which appeared in the March 15 issue of "Cal-Tax News," a publication of the California Taxpayers' Association. It is reprinted here by their permission.

By Ralph Juvinall
State Senator Albert Rodda (D-5) emerged this year from a book-filled room as a full-blown power in the affairs of the state of California.

As the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and the former chairman of the Senate Education Committee, the quiet, former teacher with a PhD in history from Stanford is uniquely positioned to play a pivotal role in the Senate this year in the resolution of the two top issues facing lawmakers: school finance reform and homeowners' property tax relief.

While in-house politicking is the traditional road to positions of power in the legislature, by all outward appearances Rodda, 64, parlayed a relentlessly scholarly approach to legislative issues and the universal respect of his colleagues to a virtual draft to succeed former Finance Committee Chairman Anthony Beilenson, who departed for Congress.

The self-effacing dean of the Senate, a self-described "liberal Democrat," has authored what has been labeled the "lower-priced spread" response to the "Serrano" mandate for equalized spending in California schools. At $500 million, his measure will cost in its fifth year of operation about half as much as the response being offered by Governor Brown, according to Rodda.

After likening the introduction of the governor's measure to "the unveiling of the Titanic," Rodda, characteristically, compared the introduction of his own bill to "the launching of the Hindenburg."

Just prior to the introduction of that measure, he talked about his bill, tax relief, education policies, and a variety of other issues.

QUESTION: Can the state comply with the Serrano decision and provide homeowners' tax relief this year without a state tax increase sometime during the next three or four years?

RODDA: That's the big issue that confronts the state. I was very optimistic until the drought became so acute. It may adversely affect our ability to respond to these two issues within existing revenues. I think if the impact is not too negative that we can do it.

We're going to try to keep the costs at a reasonable level and yet achieve a substantial degree of compliance with "Serrano" — not full compliance, but what we think is substantial compliance.

You see, the court has mandated that compliance consists of two elements: — There must be a reasonable degree of equity in expenditure levels (between school districts); — There must be a reasonable degree of equity as far as the school costs are concerned with reference to the local taxpayer.

We're going to concern ourselves in my legislation (SB 525) primarily with the first mandate; but we can't bring 100 per cent of the students within an expenditure level which (varies) by $100 or less (as mandated by the court).

I think the court's opinion is unreasonable. But the decision has been meaningful to us because it has made us achieve reforms...We can thank "Serrano" because it has given us the political pressure we've needed to overcome some of the interest groups that historically have opposed reform.

But with reference to full compliance, I don't think we are coping out; we are opting out in a reasonable way. I would rather call it an opt-out, not a cop-out. We are going to have to take some money from the wealthy districts. But I don't personally want to affect them too adversely, for political reasons as well as for a concern for the impact on their educational program and the low-income families living in basic aid districts, such as San Francisco.

What I would like to do, then, with my bill is to achieve these two objectives: reasonable compliance with Serrano, and improved funding of the teacher retirement act. I don't want, at this time — not in my bill — to increase categorical aids, such as funding for Early Childhood Education.

We must maximize the amount of surplus dollars for tax relief. Because if we don't achieve some degree of tax relief, the taxpayer revolt is going to be of such a magnitude that they may sign initiatives, qualify those initiatives, and vote for them — something that could be very disruptive to local governments.

Q: Is Serrano compliance first on your agenda, or concurrent with property tax relief?

RODDA: At one time I had in mind a bill which would include both elements. Then I decided to address myself only to "Serrano" compliance. But there is an element of tax relief in my bill. In practically all districts, even basic aid districts, over time there will be a tax rate decline for the homeowner — not as substantial a decline in basic aid districts as it might be, but there will be a tax reduction. But here's the point: That relief goes across the board, and so funds are dissipated on tax relief for commercial and industrial property as well as for the homeowner.

On the other hand, if we're going to do something such as indexing the homeowners' exemption or increasing renters' relief, we're going to be able to use all of our surplus to provide tax relief — on a significant scale — to the voter, to the homeowner.

Q: If your focus principally on the homeowner or does it include the renter equally?

RODDA: One of the reasons that I decided not to include tax relief in the bill — originally I had a circuit-breaker concept in it — is that it's very controversial, very complicated. It seemed to me that it ought to be considered apart from the school finance measure; that people ought to act on that issue on the basis of their values, their ideas about taxation, and the way legislation affects their constituency.

I'm a pragmatic person. I've been around a long time. We haven't achieved school finance reform because basic aid districts have had power; especially when their power has been coupled to that of established business, which hasn't wanted to see school finance reform because it usually meant what? A tax increase.

All right, I'm being very realistic. If my school finance bill is approved by the Senate it has to proceed where? Through the Assembly. It has to proceed through Assembly Ways and Means. It has to have, really, the speaker's approval. That's one of the considerations that I have in mind — political considerations with reference to basic aid districts. Besides that, we need the support from some of the rural area legislators (representing basic aid districts). I don't want to put those men on the spot.

Q: If the drought is severe and the economic climate worsens to a point where a tax increase is necessary, what tax or mix of taxes would you favor tapping?

RODDA: I used to strongly favor the personal income tax; that was many years ago. My enthusiasm has somewhat waned. Although we've done some things to the personal income tax which I think have been very good, such as raising the exemption to $10,000 for a two-person family...we haven't indexed it, and therefore it's placing a heavier burden on people as they move into higher tax brackets.

It isn't progressive beyond that $31,000 figure, so what we might do is make it more progressive. And we might — if we're going to use it — increase the rates across the board, because low-income families are exempt from it and a modest rate increase across the board would generate quite a bit of revenue, especially if we made it a little more progressive at the top.

But I don't think we should go too far with it. I think possibly we're going to have to look at the sales tax if we're going to have to generate a substantial amount of revenue. I'd like not to have to go to the sales tax. Maybe if the surplus is reasonable — despite the drought — we might close a few loop-holes and make the personal income tax a little more progressive, and generate the revenue we need.

I don't think I'd favor increasing the corporate profits tax. We're at a point now where if we move too far in this direction we'll make the state more non-competitive.

Q: If you had to go to the sales tax again, would you try to make it more progressive by exempting more so-called necessities?

RODDA: There aren't too many (necessities that are taxed) in the state of California. We might, instead of increasing the rate, apply the sales tax of some services. That's another option that the (Senate) Revenue and Taxation Committee will have to evaluate.

I'm just anxious not to have a tax increase. The personal income tax is not as politically popular as it once was. Since we haven't indexed it, working people now view it as a tax that hurts them, whereas 15 years ago they saw an increase in the personal income tax as being a tax on the other guy.

Q: Would you like to see the personal income tax indexed?

RODDA: Well, if we indexed, we would lose some of the elasticity. It inspire them to an ethic of some kind. Will you elaborate?

RODDA: All right, what I was saying was that the basic assumption of our society is that we as individuals are motivated and influenced by an ethic. That that ethic is absolutely essential to the functioning of the democratic system of government that we have, and that we as individuals have to govern ourselves.

Now, traditionally, we expected the church to generate and teach values, the family to generate and teach values and the schools to reinforce those values. All right, what's happening is, the family is breaking up, the church has a declining influence, and we're living in a period when existentialism is having an impact on people's thinking — it's a form of what we would have called 'romanticism' years ago.

I sense that a lot of people are convinced that life only has meaning insofar as they exercise complete and total personal freedom.

There has been an awful lot of emphasis in the last few years on individualized instruction, personalized education. What concerns me is that through all of the categorical aid programs that we have — do you want me to list them? — we are putting an awful lot of emphasis on the needs of the individual but we're not putting enough emphasis on the obligations of that individual.

To a certain extent it's reflected in the thinking of Freud and, more recently, Skinner; that we're a product of the environment, of conditioning, of our genetic heritage. Well, to the extent that those two forces are interpreted as governing life, then there's no room for democracy, because the assumption of democracy is to have free will.

People are so convinced that the state is at fault, or that 'we are not at fault' because we are mere victims of our sexual urges which, to be controlled would be to be disturbed, etc., etc. I don't call him Freud, I call him 'fraud'.

Q: What's the response? The solution in a public schools context?

RODDA: I don't know. We have a separation of church and state, and as soon as you talk about using the schools to teach moral values and ethical principles you immediately encounter serious problems from concerned citizens who visualize this as a step toward a church-oriented type of morality instruction. But read the literature that's used to teach the children in the schools today and you'll find out that there is much less literature than there used to be which represents ethical principles.

One of the reasons is that there's so much emphasis on relevance, and 'relevance' is what's current; involving young people to determine what's relevant, abandoning a concern or interest in the past. Well, today a lot of young people don't want to study history; it's not 'relevant.'

They're butterflies; that's the way they want to live. So their lives are not going to be purposeful, meaningful. They're not going to be equipped to function in a free democratic society, to govern themselves as individuals...I'm sorry — but you started this with a quote from me, right?

But, I am perplexed, discouraged, dismayed. I don't know how to proceed, with respect to this problem.

Jewish cuisine adapts to low fats, cholesterol

Current medical thinking suggests that preventative measures to lessen the occurrence of premature coronaries should start in the home kitchen. That's why health-minded cooks are taking another look at their traditional Jewish recipes to see how the old methods of food preparation can be reformed without sacrificing memorable tastes. The good news is that it can be done.

High blood cholesterol levels are often blamed for the condition of atherosclerosis, which in turn is considered to be one of the factors that may lead to premature heart attacks. It is thought that diets that are rich in saturated fats and cholesterol found, for example, in fatty meats, eggs, butter, whole milk, cheese and rich desserts — are responsible for the high cholesterol condition that may develop. A preventative measure is to exchange these saturated fats in the diet for the polyunsaturated fats that are found in vegetable foods. That way, besides increasing the use of fruits, vegetables, nuts and cereals, it is considered to be wise to substitute a polyunsaturated fat such as corn oil for cooking.

In Jewish cuisine, this would mean avoiding the use of traditional chopped liver which is made of cholesterol-rich organ meat, egg and an abundance of chicken fat. Instead, serve a chopped vegetable mixture or other low cholesterol, low saturated fat spread.

When making chicken soup, make it ahead and chill it. That way, you'll be able to skim off every bit of chicken fat that has solidified on the top, before reheating it. You can't depend on skimming it off while it's hot in the pot.

Buy lean meats and trim off any fat. When cooking pot roast, try to chill it in gravy before reheating and serving. You'll be surprised at how much solidified saturated fat you can remove. Or, if you're in a hurry and can't take the time for this step, add some ice cubes to the hot gravy and let the fat coagulate around them, and easily spoon the fat out.

For blintzes, use skim milk in the batter and a fruit filling instead of cheese. If cheese is preferred, use the skim milk variety of cottage cheese and flavor it with some vanilla. You can cut down the amount of fat used for making the crepes by brushing a small amount of corn oil in the skillet before cooking each one. Then, instead of filling and browning the blintzes in the skillet, arrange them in a greased baking pan and place in a 350°F. oven for 25 minutes, or until lightly browned.

When making desserts, find recipes that substitute polyunsaturated oil for butter, that have few eggs, and that avoid the use of whipped cream. Use a vegetable margarine instead of butter at the table. Look for margarine that lists liquid corn oil as the first ingredient. As a general rule, use skim milk instead of whole milk, skim milk yogurt instead of dairy sour cream. Limit each person to two eggs a week, as the yolks are rich in cholesterol. Serve more poultry meals but don't eat the fatty skin. Serve more fish dishes and less red meat. Avoid organ meats like liver, kidney and sweetbreads, although an occasional serving of liver is an important source of iron and vitamins. Reduce the consumption of hamburgers and frankfurters.

Take a hard look at treasured heirloom recipes you may be using. See where you can take the saturated fats out and keep the familiar tastes in. It's the wise way to enjoy old-fashioned flavors while guarding your family's continued good health. Here are four recipes that will show how to do it — Chopped Vegetable Spread that some people think tastes a bit like chopped liver, Lemon Dill Chicken for a tempting main course, traditional prune-filled Hamantaschen and Mandel Brod made with corn oil.

Hamantaschen
Prune Filling (recipe follows)
2 cups unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
Grated rind of 1 lemon
2 eggs
2 tablespoons corn oil

Prepare Prune Filling following recipe below; set aside. Stir together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add grated lemon rind. Break eggs into the center of the dry ingredients. Add oil and mix all together, kneading lightly until smooth. Roll out to less than 1/16 of an inch on floured board; cut 3-inch circles with floured cookie cutter or rim of glass. Place a teaspoon of filling in each center and fold 3 sides of circle toward the middle, pinching edges together to form a tricorned shape. Place on greased cookie sheets and bake in 375°F. oven about 30 minutes, or until browned. Makes about 2 dozen.

Prune Filling: Cook 1/2 pound pitted prunes in small amount of water. Drain, chop fine. Stir in 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1/4 cup chopped walnuts, 2 tablespoons sugar and dash of nutmeg. Peanut butter is the secret ingredient that binds this into a tasty spread.

Chopped Vegetable Spread

2 onions diced
2 tablespoons corn oil
1/4 small head cabbage
2 carrots, scraped
1 stalk celery, trimmed
1 small green pepper, seeded
3 tablespoons creamy peanut butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Saute onions in corn oil until just golden. Grind (with a fine blade) the cabbage, carrots, celery, and green pepper. Add sauteed onions through the grinder. Stir in peanut butter, salt, and pepper; mix very well. Serve as a spread for crackers, or in scoops on lettuce. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Lemon Dill Chicken

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
3 tablespoons corn oil
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried dill
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Arrange chicken in a flat baking dish. Stir together lemon juice, dill salt, and paprika; pour over chicken. Cover with foil or a tight fitting lid and bake in 350°F. oven 45 minutes, or until tender, uncovering the last 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Mandel Brod

2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1/2 lemon
1-2/3 cups flour
1/4 cup corn oil
1/4 cup finely chopped almonds
2 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons baking powder

Beat eggs well. Gradually add sugar. Add lemon rind and vanilla. Beat in 1 cup of the flour. Add oil. Stir remaining flour, almonds, and baking powder together and add to batter. You will now have a soft dough. Flour hands and shape dough on greased cookie sheet into a loaf 9 x 5 x 1/2-inch high, giving ends a rounded shape. Bake in 350°F. oven 40 to 45 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from oven and cut while still on cookie sheet into half-inch slices. Place cut-side down and return to oven for 10 minutes to crisp slices. Makes about 2 dozen pieces.

Ways to save time

Time, always at a premium, can pose a special problem during this season of the year. For the 37 million women now in the work force, just getting dinner on the table can be a major effort. Those who work at home may find such necessary activities as cooking an intrusion when there are dozens of other things to be done.

"Organization and some positive planning can help make meal time simpler," says Gloria Hansen, a home economist with the National Canners Association. Like most working women, Hansen has learned to budget time and resources more efficiently. Recently she shared some of her short cuts.

"I make it easy on myself by taking advantage of as many time-saving conveniences I can," she says. For one thing, she's a firm believer in kitchen devices — blenders, electric grills, toaster-ovens and mixers.

"If you don't have at least one of these appliances," she advises, "suggest it the next time a gift-giving occasion comes around."

Beyond that, she emphasizes there is no substitute for advance planning. "I work out menus in advance and keep a stock of convenience foods to add variety and interest to main courses, salads, vegetables and desserts."

Dishes that are complicated or take a long time to cook are prepared on weekends when the whole family is home to share the chores. "The key is to make the chores you delegate easy and fun," she says.

During the week she relies on convenience foods to stretch left-overs or dress up simple dishes. Sunday's roast is turned into a hearty stew with the addition of a can each of carrots, green beans, small whole onions, corn and potatoes. Everything is simmered in a can of gravy until it's heated through and flavored with thyme or marjoram. Plain rice cooked in bouillon and garnished with peas or mushrooms is used to complement a main course.

As a welcome change from the traditional salad, Hansen often marinates three kinds of beans in salad dressing or makes beets or asparagus vinaigrette.

Hansen even manages to produce some rather sophisticated desserts in practically no time. A family favorite is chilled mandarin orange sections topped with sweetened coconut.

Pop music review

Ohio Players: up then down

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic
The Pasadena Civic Auditorium was the scene Friday night for the Ohio Players.

The Ohio Players opened with "Love Rollercoaster," a song that pretty much set the tone for the remainder of the evening: up then down.

With beautiful white capes that appeared to be satin, Clarence Satchell, Marshall Jones, Ralph Middlebrooks, Billy Beck, Marvin Pierce, Leroy Bonner and Jimmy Williams ran around the stage before they climbed into "Love Rollercoaster."

With the way the lighting was set in appeared like four ghosts were on stage because only their capes could be seen.

"Ohio" printed out in light bulbs above the Players added to the stage decor along with mirrors situated in key positions behind the performers.

The mirrors behind the Players showed angels the audience rarely sees. Like the performers' backs, sides and parts of the audience. The mirrors were just the thing for a television cameramen but not an audience.

With the energy put out in the beginning number one might assume that the strong disco beat, along with a powerful horn section the Ohio Players are known for, would continue throughout the show. It did not.

The Players, have had enormous record sales in just 2½ years since joining Mercury Records, with albums like "Skin Tight," "Honey," "Fire," "Contradiction," and the group's greatest hits album "Gold."

All of their albums quickly went to the gold status with platinum here and there. With that much record sales success it was puzzling why the group did not perform up to par.

It appeared that the Ohio Players were lacking in personal involvement in their music.

"Skin Tight," "Ohio," and "Fire," songs that would normally get the crowd so much out of control that security would have to be called in, only got a very few people excited.

On the whole it's difficult to say just what happened. Some groups perform better on records than in a live performance. Sad to say, the Ohio Players are one of those groups. Well at least Friday they were.

At the tail end of their concert the Players threw out "Ohio Players Tour 77" flying saucers. For those few unlucky fans who caught them they will have the memories of the night the Ohio Players didn't play ...

If there were any side effects from this concert it would be the supporting act "Side Effect."

An over-entertaining act supported by such superb talent as Augie Johnson, Louis Patton, Greg Matta and Sylvia St. James. Side Effect puts on a disco choreography type show. Their music and the performers' personality had the audience on their feet throughout their performance. Side Effect has self enthusiasm for performing.

Guitar recital set

Guitarist Pepe Romero, who also performs and records with his father, Celedonio, and brothers Celin and Angel, will appear in a solo recital Friday at 8:30 p.m. in UCLA's Royce Hall.

The program will be "Six Pavanes" and "Fantasia" (Milan); Variaciones para el Emperador; "Guardame las vacas" (Narvaez);

"Recuerdos de la Alhambra" and "Capricho Arabe" (Tarrega).

Tickets are available at UCLA Central Ticket Office, 650 Westwood Plaza, and all Mutual and Wallich-Liberty Agencies. Master Charge or BankAmericard purchases may be arranged by calling (213) 825-7278. For information, call (213) 825-2953.

GOSPEL MUSIC — Andrae Crouch and the Disciples will costar in Magic Mountain's third annual "Hallelujah Jubilee" April 4-7.

Brush Arbor will perform April 8-10 at the park in Valencia. Magic Mountain will be open 10 a.m. - 8 p.m. April 2-10.

Starz second album has three potentially big hits

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic
Starz Second album is on its way and with three big possible hits.

"Cherry Baby" dealing with a prisoner's grief for

Mummers to present play

FONTANA — Tickets are now on sale for the Fontana Mummers' production — "Never Too Late," a light comedy by Sumner Arthur Long. The comedy opens Friday and will run Fridays and Saturdays for four consecutive weekends through April 23. Curtain for all performances is 8:30 p.m. The theater is located at 16286 Foothill Blvd., Fontana, corner of Oleander Avenue, one block east of Citrus Avenue, and may be reached via the Citrus Avenue offramp of the San Bernardino Freeway (I-10), heading north to Foothill Boulevard.

his lover, "Sing It, Shout It" dealing with falling in love and "Is That A Street Light Or The Moon" a tender ballad, are the most powerful songs off the new "Violation" album by Starz, the five-man "power rock" group mostly from New York (lead singer Michael Lee Smith is from Alabama).

Like a lot of powerful or hard rock groups Starz album is at times hard to understand. Their music seems to overpower the lyrics, except for "Cherry Baby," a sensational harmonic flow which at intimate parts sounds like Neil Diamond's "Cherry Cherry."

"Sing It, Shout It" is a bouncy tune that sounds like male cheer leaders. Excellent backup vocals on this tune. It possesses an understandable harmonic flow throughout.

"Is That A Street Light Or The Moon," the last song on the album, features lead singer Michael Lee Smith in a solo performance. This song has a completely different style than "Cherry Baby" and "Sing It, Shout It." Not only is it peaceful it's backed up with definite symphonic sounds.

"Is That A Street Light Or The Moon" is a song that seems right for anyone's ears and should be listened to more than once.

The title song "Violation" lacks the impact that the other three songs mentioned carry to the listener. "Violation" deals with the future where the "committee" has made it illegal to rock 'n roll and have fun.

Loyal fans might enjoy it.

Starz is made up of Richie Ranno and Brenden Harkin on lead guitars, Peter Sweval on bass, Joe X. Dube on drums, and Michael Lee Smith, lead vocals.

Knott's Berry Farm's Country Fair

Ball catcher on exhibit

Catchers don't always stand behind home plate. In fact, Paul Maher's ball catcher uses a ball that isn't even thrown.

His ball catcher uses a ball on a string and both are attached to a handle of some type. The object is to swing the ball around so that it lands on top of the handle.

Some variation of this game has existed for centuries, says Maher, builder and designer of a ball catcher. Maher will be exhibiting his toy and the workings that go into building it, at Knott's Berry Farm's Country Fair April 1-10.

"It's the oldest toy in the world," notes Maher. "In the past they used to catch stones with coconut shells." country, he points out, has had a form of ball catching but the basic toy is always the same — something attached to a string and swung around to land on some type of platform.

Maher designs his ball catcher along the lines of Mexico's "baleros," although his models use a straight upward motion, rather than swinging around as the Mexican toy does, to catch the ball.

Each ball catcher is different from the next, says Maher. He has designed a lollipop model, a rainbow, rocket and double ball catcher and the most difficult to negotiate, the barrel ball catcher. Some of the catchers are fairly easy to manage, others next to impossible, he says.

Maher uses walnut and pine wood for his pieces. The pieces are carved, either by Maher or by firms he has contracted with. They are then stained and lacquered individually. When dry, Maher will assemble them together to make his unique toy. One model has a face painted on the top section, which Maher draws himself.

Maher has been creating ball catchers for four years, evolving his toy from hand puppetry with which he is also deeply involved. The talented young man has appeared at the Renaissance Pleasure Fairs making, selling and performing with puppets. He has also worked with Sid and Marty Krofft Productions as a puppeteer and as a pantomimist, playing Charlie Chaplin.

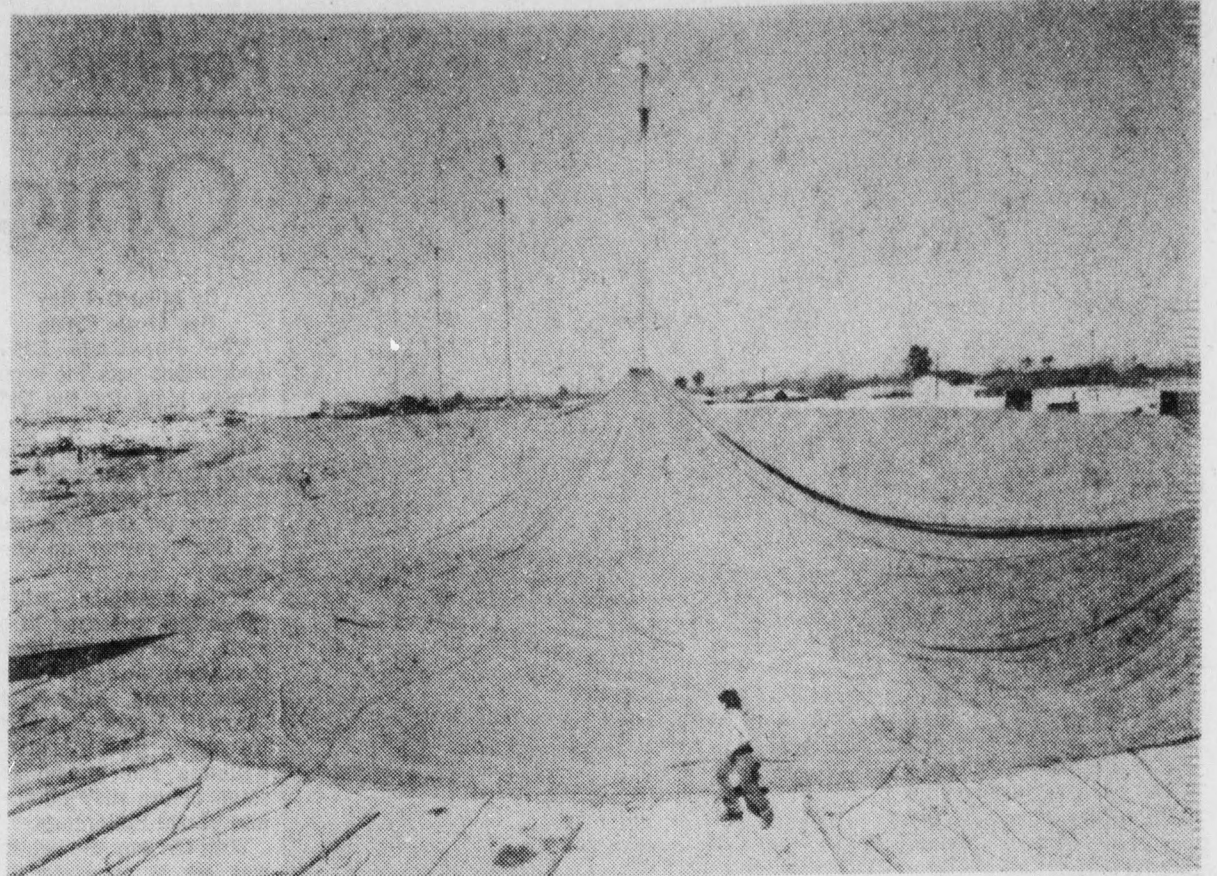

His love for folk toys — he has an extensive collection of toys — also helped get him involved with his present sideline.

Other artisans like Maher, who will be exhibiting at Knott's Country Fair, include a quilt maker, rag doll maker, leather craftsman, boda bag maker, potter and basket maker. In addition, the fair will present country games such as cow milking, hog calling, beard judging, yodeling, greased pig catching and pie-eating contests.

Celebrity entertainment scheduled for the fair includes Dr. Hook, popular rock group who have had such hits as "Sylvia's Mother," "Cover of the Rolling Stone" and "Only Sixteen," performing April 2-3 and 7-9 and Alan, presenting his show, "A Tribute To Elvis," April 1-2.

There will be special entertainment during the fair as well, including exhibition square dancing, bluegrass groups, country western groups such as The Billy Walker Show and special acts such as King Arthur The Lion, a high wire comedy act. In addition, Knott's own shows will be presented daily. Rock dancing to live bands and Knott's Disco Machine will be held nightly.

Hours for the country fair are Friday (April 1) 10 a.m. to midnight; Saturday (April 2) 9 a.m. to 1 a.m.; Sunday through Thursday (April 3-7) 9 a.m. to midnight; Friday and Saturday (April 8-9) 9 a.m. to 1 a.m. and Sunday (April 10) 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

THE BIG TOP — The new royal blue Big Top will be raised Monday when Circus Vargas comes to the Montclair Plaza. The circus, to feature clowns, elephants, aerialists, balancing acts, wild lions and tigers, bears, chimps and a 12-piece brass band, will play 8 p.m. Monday and 1, 4:30 and 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the plaza, at the San Bernardino Freeway and Central Avenue.

'Die Fledermaus' to open at Cal Poly

The Cal Poly Opera Workshop will present a full production of Johann Strauss' Die Fledermaus in the University Theater on the Pomona campus Friday and Saturday, April 1 and 2.

We are all very excited about the production," said Dr. Charles Lindsley, associate professor of music and director of the production.

"It will be the first full-length opera ever at Cal Poly. We have some wonderful young singers, two of whom were Metropolitan Opera audition winners this year, Melanie Chambers and Mary Heyler. Our stage director, Genevieve McDowell, is very talented and imaginative. She trained with Frank Corsaro, stage director of the New York City Opera, and is eminently qualified. And of course our orchestra director, Donald Ambrosio, is tops."

According to Lindsley, the students are working hard, and will

Other members of the cast include William Smith, Los Angeles; Alva Quesada, Los Angeles; and Daniel Terzo, Los Angeles.

The cast will be supported by a 22-voice chorus. Set design is by Keith Nagy, Pomona, senior and costume design is by Terry Gullo, technical assistant in drama, Montclair.

Performances both nights will begin at 8 p.m.

EASTER ENTERTAINMENT — Ray McKinley and His Orchestra along with Paula Kelly and The Modernaires, will be showcased nightly April 3-9 at Disneyland.

Jewelry ideal

There's nothing like a gift of jewelry to make a woman feel like a queen — and you can provide the royal treatment on Mother's Day without spending a king's ransom.

According to the Jewelry Industry Council, gift-givers this year will find golden opportunities in every price range. Fashion is experiencing a new "Gold Rush" in both karat gold and gold-filled jewelry. Necklaces, bracelets, earrings, pins, pendants and rings all lend themselves to the Midas touch — in brush, matte and polished treatments as well as Florentine and other textured surfaces. The glint of gold appears in everything from ancient Egyptian designs to tomorrow's boldly sculpted geometrics.

Gold chain necklaces in single or double strands are versatile additions to Mon's wardrobe.

Think ahead in planning

Landscaping made easier

Landscaping used to be a luxury that only owners of large estates could afford, and they wisely spent a significant amount on it, realizing that however magnificent their manor house might be, it needed the proper setting for maximum effect.

Today, the average home owner is becoming increasingly more aware that the grounds outside the house can increase or lessen the value of his property by a sizable sum. The biggest, single investment that most people make in their lifetime is the purchase of their home, and even if appreciation of beauty and of nature doesn't enter the picture, the mere fact that attractive landscaping adds to the property value is reason enough to give it serious attention.

However, many people, young marrieds especially, find it tough to spare the necessary amount of money to do a first-rate landscaping job. But as with furnishing a home, landscaping can be done in several phases, over a period of years.

In the meantime, the home owner wants color and flowers in his garden with a minimum of expense. He wants to create "a big show" for little money, right now. Can it be done? The answer is yes — with spring-flowering bulbs.

It makes sense to start landscaping close to the house and later work your way toward the rear of the property. The front entrance and the terrace are areas first and most often seen by you, your family and friends. Concentrate on these first for immediate gratification. With careful planning, you can have bulbs flowering from early February through July, dividing them into early, mid and late-spring categories.

If properly planted, foundation planting should have shrubs spaced fairly far apart to give them space to grow to their proper natural shapes, eventually nearly touching one another. In the meantime, fill the empty "holes" with clumps of bright tulips. Have several clumps each of the early, mid and late season varieties for a continuous show of color. If you have a ground cover near the entrance or by the terrace, plant groupings of daffodils in it. Their vivid yellow colors look gay and cheerful against the green of pachysandra or ivy. You might plant them in clusters in front of evergreen shrubs or trees or in deep planters around the terrace.

A terrace is quickly "decorated" with the simple placement of several large containers around it, filled with masses of the tall, large-cupped daffodils (try the double, ruffled varieties with stunning color combinations of white or yellow petals with orange cups). Or, fill them with tulips, of whatever variety most appeals to you. Choose from Parrot tulips (fringed or scalloped edges). Late-Double (with enormous peony-like flowers), the graceful Lily-flowered tulips and the tall, stately Darwin, Darwin Hybrids or Cottage. All of these varieties are superb for a "showcase" display.

Hyacinth, the fragrant queen of bulbs, is a must planted near the terrace area where you can readily inhale the intoxicating perfume. Avoid planting them in rows, even in a planter. Group them informally, all of one color for maximum effect. Alternate a clump of pink with one of white and another of blue, or if you have only one container for them, use a blue or purple variety in the center with whites all around as a border.

If you're fortunate to have a shade tree by the terrace (if not, you should most certainly make it part of your future plans), enhance its loveliness with a carpet of small bulbs at the base. Long before the leaves appear on the tree, and with snow still patches here and there, you'll thrill at the sight of your first spring flowers. Plant crocus or Galanthus (Snowdrops) or Chionodoxa (Glory-of-the-Snow) for the earliest of blooms, with Muscari (Grape hyacinths) for a later showing.

For your one flower bed, you'll rely heavily at first on a flat or two of annuals to give it color during July and August. In the meantime, what do you do with the empty spaces? Plant spring-flowering bulbs of course, to fill the garden with color until the annuals take over. With a modest investment of a bagful of bulbs, a couple of cups of bone-meal and one hour of your time, you can have a continuous show of some of the most beautiful flowers in the plant kingdom.

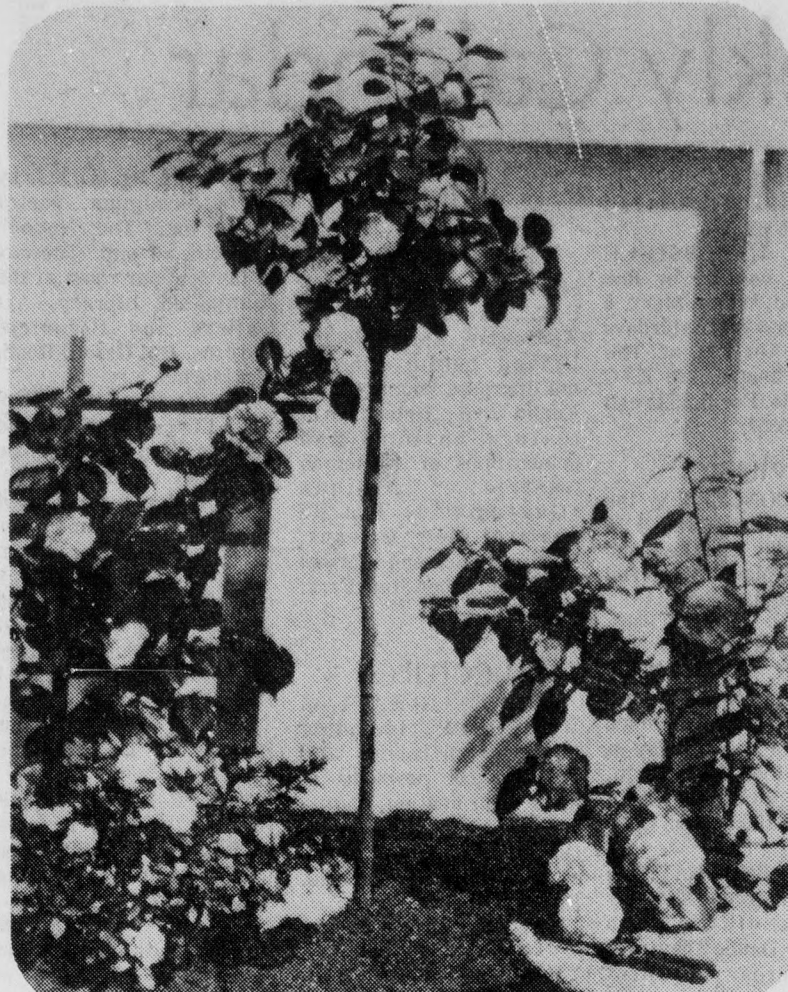

If you have a spot that needs tall, regal, dramatic flowers, don't look any further than the nearest Fritillaria Imperialis (Crown Imperial). Their majestic blossoms on three- to four-foot stems have a circle of large pendulous flowers topped by a green crown of leaves. (Plant deeply, about 8 to 10 inches and 12 inches apart). They come in several colors, bloom in late April, and last for many years. Another tall bulb is the Allium. The variety "Giganteum" grows up to four feet, bearing colossal violet flowers in July.

The way to start your landscaping is first to select the spots where you'll place the bulbs. Next, choose types of bulbs and varieties that are suitable and which will bloom at different times. Finally, comes the planting which is very easy.

All of these bulbs must be planted in the fall, right up until the ground freezes (in warmer parts of the country, planting should be delayed until late November or December).

The larger bulbs such as tulips, daffodils and hyacinths are planted six inches deep and six inches apart. The "little" bulbs such as Galanthus are planted three inches deep and three inches apart. When planting in clumps, save time and energy by digging one large hole of the proper depth, setting the bulbs firmly in place with the pointed end up.

It's a good idea to sprinkle some bone-meal at the bottom of the hole at planting time.

HARDY PLANT — Camellias are a hardy plant that can serve to beautify the winter and early spring garden in so many different ways. It can be as foundation plantings, a hedge, ground cover, accent specimens, trained as espaliers and can also be in containers and hanging baskets at the entryway of the home.

Simple steps help lawns start strongly

As warmer weather approaches, lawns and, unfortunately, the weed seeds in them will begin coming to life. A few simple steps taken now will get your lawns off to a strong healthy start this spring with fewer weeds and greater resistance to rust and water stress.

Grass lawns will benefit from an application of pre-emergent weed killers if applied soon. Pre-emergent weed killers kill crabgrass and annual bluegrass seeds and seedlings. If application is delayed into the growing season, their effectiveness is reduced considerably. Combination weed killer/fertilizers are popular at this time of year as they give lawns a competitive boost while eliminating the source of many potential weeds at the same time. Continued fertilization of lawns throughout the season will help keep them healthy, vigorous and green. And, the more vigorous your lawn, the less likely you are to have serious weed or disease problems. In fact, an extra application of calcium nitrate will help eliminate rust.

Good watering practices will also encourage healthier growth. Water deeply, but infrequently to force deep root growth. This will greatly increase your lawn's tolerance to heat and water stress.

American nurserymen state 'survival is dressed in green'

Man's ultimate victory in the war against pollution and environmental decay is dependent on this earth's green, growing plant life, which traps dirt and pollution from the air, helps abate noise, protects the soil, purifies water, contributes to the beauty of our surroundings and, above all, manufactures the oxygen necessary for life itself. Flourishing plant life around us is the key to our survival. Thus members of the American Association of Nurserymen have joined together under the banner of "Green Survival" in an all-out campaign to bring the message home to each individual that man's survival is truly dressed in green — in green, growing plants, trees, shrubs, flowers and other plant life.

"Some of the answers to our big environmental problems have been around us all along," said Robert F. Lederer, executive vice president of the American Association of Nurserymen (AAN).

"The best weapon we have against pollution and decay lies in nature's own system — in the plant life around us," he said. "Trees and bushes, for example, can do more to purify the air and catch dirt and grit from the air than anything else you can name. They also create a pleasant sight as well as an effective sound barrier. All but the most severe erosion problems can be solved by the proper planting of trees and other plants," Lederer pointed out.

Explaining the term "Green Survival," Lederer said, "It's clear that if man is going to clean up this mess and survive his own abuses, he is going to have to maintain the ecological balance that nature established in the beginning between animal and plant life.

"Once we all understand this vital, basic fact, the concept behind 'Green Survival' and its serious implications for our world and for future generations becomes clear," he said.

Speaking about the Green Survival program, Lederer said the members of the AAN have stepped up their efforts to bring about a much greater public awareness and involvement in solving ecological and other environmental problems.

"Our efforts," he explained, "are directed to the individual — every individual — to show each person how he, acting on his own, can make a substantial impact on the overall environment."

Plant ground cover

Ground covers are essential in the control of wind and rain erosion and in urban settings the more green added to the environment the better. During the past two winters, rainfall has been tragically short and soil moisture is extremely low. What's needed to avoid a mini-dust bowl situation in the home garden seems to be the planting of ground covers and lawn substitutes — preferably drought tolerant varieties.

Ice Plant is a good choice. It is easy to establish on most soils and its succulent leaves enable it to store water to help it survive dry spells, hot weather, and drying winds. There are several types of Ice Plants. Most have the same growing requirements so select the one you like best. Algerian Ivy (Hedera canariensis) and English Ivy (Hedera helix) are also quite drought tolerant after the first two summers.
